sheltering our seniors
protecting our most vulnerable
My family loves to watch the Rose Bowl parade every year. The theme this year was “Build, Hope, Dream,” and it reminded me of my 2013 letter to you all, when the theme of the parade was “O the Places You’ll Go.” (Somehow Rose Bowl parades mirror the life of this ministry!)

Habitat’s mission is Building Homes, Communities and Hope. The families we serve dream of owning a home of their own. Habitat is the only builder in the Golden Crescent selling new homes at a price point that a family of four earning between $25,270 and $43,320 can afford. What we do here really matters—it makes a difference to the hard-working families in our communities.

Seniors and Veterans often have difficulty finding the funds to do maintenance of the homes they own. Golden Crescent Habitat for Humanity now provides 0% loans for those projects. The article “Sheltering Our Seniors” (p. 10) addresses some of the challenges facing this vulnerable segment of the population.

This is my last letter to you as the Executive Director of GCHFH. Sometime during the next year, I will “hang up my hammer.” This ministry has been a large part of my life for 21 years, and I loved every minute of it! My boys understand why volunteering in the community is important from lessons they learned on Habitat job sites. I will miss interacting with each of you, the donors and volunteers that make Habitat happen. May the Lord bless you in the years to come.

Grace and Peace,

Cynthia J. Staley

Like many homeowners, Sandra didn’t evacuate when Hurricane Harvey hit her home in Refugio in 2017. She endured 100+ mph winds and rain as the storm sat over the area for hours, doing millions of dollars worth of damage in the county.

“All the damage that was done, not just to my house but to my neighbors’ houses—it was like bomb hit,” she remembered. “At first it didn’t look like there was much damage, but later on when everything settled down, I realized it’s a miracle that the house did not fall down.”

With nowhere to go, Sandra continued to live in her damaged home. Because of the storm, dust and wind came through damaged walls, water leaked through her roof, and pests infested her house. Her health was negatively impacted, and sometimes she struggled to breathe.

Unfortunately, Sandra’s story wasn’t unique. As a low-income homeowner in Refugio County, she had limited resources. The county’s small population size and remote location meant there was a dearth of local social service agencies available to handle the vast recovery efforts.

Rebuild Texas Fund—a philanthropic leader during Hurricane Harvey recovery—witnessed GCHFH’s disaster recovery efforts in neighboring counties. Rebuild Texas Fund joined with several other disaster recovery leaders and donors to encourage GCHFH to tackle Refugio County’s disaster recovery problem.

GCHFH was uniquely positioned to jump in and help address the hurricane damage in Refugio County thanks to years of construction experience, along with proven experience mobilizing volunteers and donors to build houses. After thoughtful prayer and consideration, the GCHFH Board of Directors sought, and was granted, permission from Habitat for Humanity International to temporarily provide services in Refugio to rebuild and repair homes for low-income homeowners.

Now, five years after the storm, GCHFH has completed its mission in Refugio County by rebuilding 40 homes, including Sandra’s, and repairing 41 more homes.

To learn more about a 2022 event, contact the Advancement Director at holly@goldencrescenthabitat.org.
Sandra has lived in her new home since July 2020. When asked what she liked best about her home, she said, “The fact that it was made out of love; from people who cared enough to donate their time, to donate their materials and help someone.”

Looking back on the experience, Cynthia Staley, GCHFH Executive Director, said Refugio County etched a special place in GCHFH’s story. “I never could have imagined when we said yes to temporarily offering our services in Refugio County how much the Lord would use our mission to accomplish His mission,” said Cynthia Staley, GCHFH Executive Director. “The families we served, the people we worked alongside, the community we became part of—it all has left an impression on those of us at Habitat.”

During the months and years after Hurricane Harvey, many organizations from around the country and world gave GCHFH a hand up by funding our disaster recovery efforts. GCHFH received more than $9 million in disaster recovery donations and grants from generous donors outside of Victoria County. GCHFH staff and volunteers used this hand up by putting in the sweat equity to help the much-needed families in the Golden Crescent.

Meet Daly

Daly is an admitting clerk at a local hospital who has lived in apartments her whole life. She dreamed of living in a house of her own with her three daughters: Jazlyn (15), Saraya (14) and Aniyan (11). As a single mom, Daly is now working hard on building a safe, permanent Habitat home for her family.

Meet Zeke

Esequiel “Zeke” is a handyman who provides maintenance to a local golf course. He was encouraged by Habitat supporter Robby Burdge to apply for a home with Habitat. After living in Victoria for 30 years, he looks forward to having a safe environment where he will have a home of his own.

Meet Bethia
Meet Burt & Gloria

Burt, a former Walmart associate, and Gloria, a former housekeeper, are enjoying retired life. But with the increasing price of rent, they'd like to have a homestead of their own where their four grown children, nine grandchildren, and 12 great-grandchildren can visit and Burt can display his famous BBQ skills.

After 38 years of marriage, Gloria and Burt Serna decided it was time to experience homeownership. Having only lived in rental properties, they look forward to having a yard for Burt to show off his green thumb. They are both excited about participating in the Koinonia Community Garden on Myra Lane. Burt grew up working in his grandparents' large garden and enjoyed eating the vegetables grown there.

Bethia is a teller at a local credit union. She has three grown children and five grandchildren. Having never owned a home before, Bethia looks forward to her Habitat home providing a safe, secure place to live.
After 21 years at the helm of GCHFH, Cynthia Staley (Cindy) will retire in June 2022. A team of GCHFH stakeholders have been busy identifying a new Executive Director. Stay tuned for that announcement.

While it is hard to put into words the impact Cindy has had on Habitat and the community, longtime employee Holly Pickering tried with this letter:

As the only person who has been on staff at Habitat longer than Cindy, and in positions that often require me to serve as her ghostwriter, I have a pretty unique perspective and deep understanding of Cindy. It is not uncommon that my position requires me to sit down at the computer to write a grant or a letter and say to myself “What would Cindy say?”

For most of my adult life, Cindy’s voice has been the secondary voice in my head. Let me just say, if you have to inhabit someone’s brain and heart and live with their voice, Cindy’s is a good one. First and foremost, whatever the issue, she always brings it back to God. How do we obey God’s command to love one another by serving these families? How do we thank our donors and volunteers and recognize God’s goodness? Facing a major problem? She always reminds us that God is sovereign and good and that He always provides.

I am not going to wax poetic and pretend that Cindy is perfect. She is often late. She occasionally forgets plans. And to know Cindy is to know that she sometimes says things that probably should not be said out loud. However, I am here to say that she absolutely has a Christ-like heart and that God called her to Habitat. She answered that call on Day 1 with a spirit of humility and faith that has been present every day of her service since.

When Cindy started 21 years ago, we served one county and it was just the two of us at the office. GCHFH, then known as Habitat Victoria, was in a period of transition from being an organization that for years had been all-volunteer run to one run by professional staff. Under Cindy’s leadership GCHFH has grown exponentially and now serves five counties.

Her vision and leadership helped create a formal development program designed to sustain the mission far beyond her years of service. She grew a Construction Department that has literally leveraged millions in volunteer hours and constructed 168 new homes and conducted over 240 repairs. She envisioned how much more efficient and effective it would be to have all Habitat operations under one roof and oversaw the funding and development of the current Habitat complex, which included a major expansion of the Habitat ReStore. When Hurricane Harvey landed, she jumped into action immediately, understanding the critical role Habitat was equipped to play in our community’s disaster recovery.

Throughout her years, Cindy has been the best kind of leader—a servant leader. She empowers everyone around her and keeps an eye on the future, remaining both steadfast in the mission, but also flexible and adaptable.

I know that I speak for every staff person, volunteer, donor, director and homeowner that has worked with Cindy through the last 21 years when I say that Cindy is more than just an Executive Director. She is a mentor, a friend, and above all, a servant of God. To know Cindy and have witnessed her service to Habitat is to know God’s love for all of us.

GCHFH, along with Habitat for Humanity International and 83 other U.S. Habitat affiliates, recently received a transformational gift from American author and philanthropist MacKenzie Scott. The $3.5 million donation that GCHFH received comes at a time when the community is experiencing a devastating affordable housing crisis.

This donation will have a profound impact on not just GCHFH, but the entire six-county service area. Because of that, the nonprofit’s leadership will meet with community leaders and stakeholders in each county to receive input on housing needs and how the organization can use the dollars to their fullest potential.

“We will be good stewards of this gift as we stick to our core mission of building homes, communities and hope, just at a faster pace now,” said Cynthia Staley, GCHFH Executive Director. “Identifying land to build new Habitat homes has been a priority for a while now, but land is expensive, and the process takes time. Prayer is powerful and this generous gift from Ms. Scott will move our plans closer to reality. That doesn’t mean we do not still need help from the community. While these funds will jump start the process, there is still much to do.”
In the days and months after Hurricane Harvey, GCHFH leadership quickly realized that there was a great need in our community for critical repairs to homes, a need far beyond just the damage created by the storm. In response, GCHFH instilled a permanent Critical Repair Program (CRP). The program works with low-income homeowners to provide major repairs, such as the replacement of roofs and windows. Generally, these repairs are a minimum of $5,000 and are absolutely dire to maintaining the structural integrity and safety of the home.

As we launched the program and began to understand the depth of the need, we identified a heartbreaking trend: Many of the homeowners most in need of this service are some of the most precious people in our community—our seniors.

These seniors, most of whom qualified as the “working poor” when they were working, are now retired and absolutely unable to keep up with expenses. Thankfully, they own their homes. But unfortunately their limited budgets often mean they have minimal or no homeowner’s insurance and have deferred maintenance. This maintenance goes far beyond cosmetic issues, leaving their houses vulnerable to the elements of heat and cold, and oftentimes unsafe.
In Victoria, the percentage of people over 60 living in poverty has nearly doubled in the last 10 years to almost 20 percent. (City of Victoria “CDBG Analysis of Impediments 2020”). Meaning, nearly one-fifth of the seniors living in our community are struggling greatly.

GCHFH’s Critical Repair Program helps ensure that the elderly, low-income residents in our community are able to live with dignity, safety and pride, remaining in their own homes as long as possible. We can’t do this alone though. We need your help with volunteering, sponsoring a project and providing lunches for volunteers. If you are interested in helping, please contact the Repair Construction Manager at elizabeth@goldencrescenthabitat.org.

“Meet Brenda

The home that Brenda and her father, both senior citizens, lived in was badly damaged from Hurricane Harvey. They moved into an RV in their front yard because the house was making them sick. To make matters worse, both had health incidents that made it harder for them to live in the RV.

Four years after the storm caused damage, GCHFH was able to fix the house’s foundation, along with dirt work to correct drainage issues. A small bathroom was renovated, as well as repairing a damaged bedroom wall.

Unfortunately, Brenda’s elderly father died before the repairs could be completed. But Brenda is comforted that she is back in the house—safer now—that her father put so much time and effort into making a home.

“I just love that I feel safe in it,” Brenda said. “My dad built this house, so it means everything to me now that he is gone.”

“To care for those who once cared for us is one of the highest honors.”

Can shopping at the ReStore really help keep me on budget?

The short answer is YES! The long answer is...

We don’t have a crystal ball, but according to housing experts, things like secondhand furniture, building supplies and home décor will be in demand this year, primarily because of supply chain issues. This can put a damper on home-improvement projects or decorating your home.

Many people think of the Habitat ReStore when it comes to donating household items, but there is so much more. At any given time, you can find building supplies, remanufactured paint, scratch-and-dent appliances, hardware and more. As an added bonus, all these items at the Habitat ReStore are at a fraction of the costs at a big box store.

If you haven’t been to the ReStore in a while, we invite you to come in. You may be surprised at what you find...and at how nice it is on your wallet.

But the best part about staying on budget by shopping at the Habitat ReStore is that every dollar you spend here helps Habitat homeowners build and repair their forever homes.
This year, the Charlie Jones Lifetime Achievement Award goes to Elaine Noland. When GCHFH expanded into Goliad County in 2012, Elaine quickly became an essential part of Habitat’s presence in the county through volunteering and fundraising. She has remained a Habitat advocate in the county ever since, serving as the Goliad representative on the GCHFH board for three years. She is a servant leader who is willing to do anything to get the job done—and does it with a smile.

DOW Chemical Company was named the 2021 Dan Coleman Community Partner. DOW has financially supported GCHFH through sponsoring eight houses, numerous fundraisers and several community grants. Dow employees and retirees are among GCHFH’s most faithful volunteers, serving as construction supervisors, board members, house construction leaders, and event volunteers. Their knowledge and skills contribute significantly to our mission of building homes, communities and hope.

As you clear the clutter in your home this spring, keep the Habitat ReStore in mind. Call us at 361-570-4700 for a complimentary donation pick up.
